Top 3 Strategic Priorities for Security and Risk Management Leaders

Choose cybersecurity technology that offers high levels of integration, automation and orchestration.

Reframe the Role of the Cybersecurity Leader

Leadership Misconception

 "The CISO prevents breaches."

 "Cyber risk is security's problem."

 "Security is a roadblock to speed."

Reframe

 "A leader facilitates risk management."

 "Cyber risk is a business/organizational risk."

 "Security enables agile and secure products."

3 Challenges and Actions for Security and Risk Management Leaders:

The loss of control

 One in five workers consider themselves digital technology experts since COVID-19. 49% of "ineffective" CISOs incur unrealistic expectations from stakeholders.

Actions for the SRM leader

Develop a culture of cyber judgment and align this culture with evolving talent needs.

Boards demand value

One in 10 organizations are now creating cybersecurity-specific committees at the board level. Boards identify cybersecurity risk as the second highest source of risk for the enterprise.

Actions for the SRM leader

Prioritize customers and market-facing business relationships and focus on value-generating activities.

A cybersecurity mesh architecture has evolved

If endpoints, digital citizens and IT assets will be located anywhere, then cybersecurity controls need to be able to follow suit.

Actions for the SRM leader

Choose cybersecurity technologies that offer high levels of integration, automation and orchestration capabilities.
